Commissioners Fire Chief Tax Assessor

By JIM SHAFER
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — George K. Brands Sr., Monroe County Chief Tax Assessor, was dismissed yesterday, effective at 4 p.m., by Monroe County commissioners.

The action was taken after Commissioner Willard L. Quick moved for his dismissal on the grounds of insubordination to the board. The motion was seconded by Commissioner John R. Lesoine. Commissioner Stanley B. Rader did not vote.

The motion had been tabled at the May 23 meeting of the commissioners "for further study."

Action of the matter came about shortly after Brands entered the commissioner's office. Quick said, "We do not want to talk to you. We sent for your assistant Kenneth Erickson." The question related to a tax appeal being made by Charles Theodore, an owner and operator of Blue Ridge Inn Motel, near Marshalls Creek.

Brands replied to Quick, "As chief assessor I am responsible for all tax appeals and I feel I am the one to discuss this issue with. However, if you want to talk to my deputy that's your privilege."

Lesoine said, "George, we are the commissioners and we will decide who we want to talk to about this matter. Now I am not going to get myself worked up with you. About one year ago this board sent your office a letter telling you that we wanted a copy of all changes in assessments your office mailed out, sent to our office. You have not done this."

Brands replied, "John, they are in my office, all up to date, and I'll bring them right over. It's only a matter of minutes to move them across the street to your office."

Lesoine continued, "For four years you and I have argued about orders of this board you have not complied with. When things were ordered by this office and you did not like them or approve of them, you wanted us to send you a letter. The letter I'm referring to was mailed last August and you haven't complied with it yet."

Brands interrupted Lesoine, saying, "There is only one question involved and that is the place you want the lists filed. You tell me where you want them and I'll personally deliver them within five minutes."

Lesoine, again speaking to Brands said, "Another thing we (the commissioners) had a gentleman's agreement before we hired you. It was that as long as you were chief assessor, you would not deal in real estate."

Brands replied to Lesoine, "This is not true. The only agreement we had was regarding press releases."

Lesoine turned to Atty. Leo Achterman, solicitor for the commissioners, and said, "Leo, were you present when we discussed the matter of real estate dealing with George?"

Achterman replied, "Yes, and that was the gentleman's agreement or you would not have voted in favor of his being hired."

Lesoine turned to Brands again saying, "Now almost one year later after you received a letter from the board you want to comply with its wishes. George, this board has other things to discuss today and business to do, so this talk with you is at an end."

Brands replied to the board, "My office is your office. Please feel free to come in at any time and Commissioner Quick, if you have any business in my office or with my employees I would appreciate it if you did not do it through the windows of my offices."

Quick later explained the comment saying, "Many times on my way to the courthouse from the parking lot in back of the tax assessor's office, I have talked to the employees sitting near the window."

The letter Lesoine referred to states:

"Dear George:
"At a meeting of the board of commissioners held Monday, August 27, 1962, the board suggested that I pass on the following information: Make a record of all complaints that come in and mail back the exonerations on same and give the board a record of these items, whatever they may be."

The letter is signed, "Sincerely yours, Monroe County Commissioners, H. Ray Saunders, Chief Clerk." The letter was dated Aug. 27, 1962.

Following the action, each commissioner was asked for a comment by a Daily Record reporter.

Lesoine's statement was, "Seven years ago, when Brands was hired, I questioned his activities of previous real estate dealings and was against hiring him at that time for fear that he would use the knowledge of the office to promote his real estate activities."

"Four years ago I asked for his dismissal because of not following orders of this board and also because of the manner in which he treated the public, including some public officers, when they came to his office seeking information," he continued.

"Now I have found that he is involved in dealing in real estate transactions and has been able to do so because of specific knowledge gained from the assessor's office," he continued.

Quick's statement was, "I am satisfied with the outcome of the motion and would like to add that four years ago when Lesoine asked for Brands' dismissal I voted to keep him on at the job."

Rader said, "The office is a political appointment and it was made before I came as a commissioner by a board before me therefore I have no part in it. That is why I did not vote."

Brands was located sometime later and asked if he cared to make a statement. He said, "I have no comment at this time. My statements will be made between now and November."

The board named Mrs. Lulu Lanterman as acting chief assessor. She will assume her new role today when the office opens at 9 a.m.

'Ole Miss' Campus Quiet; State-Federal Issue Hot Spot

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith, the University of Mississippi's first Negro student, registered for the summer session Thursday.

The 29-year-old senior arrived from Jackson, Miss., to find things a bit different than they were during the long and lonely winter session.

The dormitory quarters included another Negro student, Cleve McDowell, 21.

Meredith, drove his little foreign car by the Law College to pick up

McDowell, who had just completed his first class at Ole Miss.

McDowell, coiffed with a white shirt and dark tie, had walked to the Law School building unaccompanied — although U.S. marshals watched from a few hundred feet away.

In a television talk Wednesday at Jackson, Gov. Ross R. Barnett said the might of the U.S. government got McDowell into Ole Miss and is now responsible for his safety.

At Baxter Hall, the men's dormitory where both were assigned, McDowell helped Meredith carry his belongings to his room.

Both were ignored by most white students. Some 2,000 of them are expected to register for the summer session—about half of the student population during the fall and spring sessions.

Many incoming students are teachers and others working for higher degrees, which raises the average campus age level and is expected to lead to a relatively calm summer.

McDowell passed through registration Wednesday without incident. He said he didn't even hear a rude remark during the process.

When Meredith first arrived on campus last fall, protected by some 400 marshals, it sparked a campus riot that left two men dead and scores wounded.

Throughout the regular school year, Meredith was accompanied by marshals when he moved about the campus.

Of the some 20,000 troops sent into the Oxford area after the riot, 100 remain on duty as permanent guards at Baxter Hall and to assist the marshals.

The showdown between Gov.

George Wallace of Alabama and the federal government next week will end with three Negroes enrolling in the University of Alabama, an administration source said.

An overwhelming federal force will be used if necessary, the spokesman said, but President Kennedy hopes Army troops standing by in Alabama will not be needed.

The question of using troops is not up to the federal government, this source said, but to the governor who is under court orders not to interfere with integration of the university system.

Federal officials met Thursday with University of Alabama authorities and three Negro students to go over plans for registering the Negroes. University officials said that two of the students are scheduled to enroll at the main campus at Tuscaloosa next Tuesday and the other would be registered at the Huntsville extension center next Thursday.

Jefferson Bennett, administrative vice president of the university, said there would be no effort to secretly register or place the students on the campus.

Ribicoff said that early this year the department furnished the Library of Congress a list of such products with "not for publication" typed across the top. He said department officials explained to the library that release of the information would be unfair to the manufacturers.

Clos Loophole
Under protest registration, Ribicoff explained, a manufacturer may sell his product legally even though the department has disapproved of it. One ground for disapproval, he said, is failure to establish safety.

"The department now says it will issue a press release every time a new product is registered under protest. This commendable development is obviously of very recent origin," he said.

Scranton Approves Ten Bills

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton signed into law Thursday a bill to borrow $1 million from the state employees' retirement fund for general fund purposes.

The money will be paid back in the next fiscal period.

Other measures signed into law by Scranton:

—Fix the maximum height of boat carriers when loaded at 13 1/2 feet.

—Allow the payment of salaries to Second Class township secretaries and treasurers instead of just fees.

—Lower from two to one the minimum number of physicians required for a Third Class city board of health.

—Authorize the use of hostile signatures in the handling of urban redevelopment affairs.

—Permit state employees to use pension rights as collateral for loans up to $500.

—Validate ordinances in Second Class townships and Third Class cities at certain meetings.

—Allow Second Class township supervisors to transact business other than organizing as a board at meetings on the first Monday of January.

—Allow the creation of a county employees' retirement system in Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Class counties.

—Make the Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A., Inc., a legally recognized veterans organization in Pennsylvania.

Scranton Wants Better Bill On School Reorganization

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton said Thursday he would make a plea to Senate GOP leaders next week for a stronger school reorganization bill.

However, he expressed the view that amendments made in the administration bill Wednesday by the Senate Education Committee "will be a step forward."

The committee inserted a provision that would make plans drawn up according to a 1947 school reorganization act acceptable under the proposed new act.

The governor told his weekly news conference that he had advised Sen. Paul L. Wagner, R-Schuylkill, education committee chairman, "that I would prefer they (the committee) consider the original bill."

The meeting shaped up as a major reappraisal of legislative goals of the administration. Scranton said he expects to be able to give out at the next news conference a list of bills he feels must be passed before the legislature adjourns.

The governor also said he has hired pollster John E. Budd to find out "what the people of Pennsylvania are thinking about our policies and progress."

"I think this is most important to anybody in political life," he said.

Among the things the pollster has surveyed, he disclosed, were reaction to the tax increase and a possible ban on busing.

"In relation to other tax increases (in other states at various times) there's not as much opposition" the poll showed, Scranton said.

As for busing Budd found the people "overwhelmingly in favor of continuation of busing," Scranton said.

In other highlights: Civil Rights Demonstrations — The chairman of the State Human Relations Commission was asked to make an investigation of demonstrations in Philadelphia over hiring of skilled Negro labor, Scranton said.

Philadelphia Republican Chairmanship — The Philadelphia Republican City Committee will select its chairman at a meeting next week, Scranton said, without stating whether he preferred to see Wilbur Hamilton continue in the job. Hamilton has been under fire for insurance patronage received from Democratic agencies.

Defense Contracts — Pennsylvania's share of defense contracts has remained about the same percentage-wise, but the dollar volume has gone up, Scranton said.

Legalizing thoroughbred (flat) horse racing — "I think that we better test this one (harness racing) out first," Scranton said. He added the administration wanted to assess the possible interference of racketeers "and other evil influences" with the harness tracks where gambling has been legalized for the first time in more than a century of Pennsylvania history.

Profumo Incident Staggers British Government Circles

LONDON (AP)—The turbulent love life of a beautiful redhead rocked Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government Thursday.

There were demands for yet another investigation of Britain's security services.

And the name of Queen Elizabeth II was drawn into the burning political row.

A Conservative member of the House of Commons, John Cordle, said Thursday night he was appalled to hear that the Queen was receiving John Profumo, who resigned as war minister Wednesday admitting he lied when he said he had not had improper relations with model Christine Keeler, 22.

It is customary, though not obligatory, for outgoing secretaries of state to hand over their seals of office to the sovereign. Some commentators had speculated that Profumo might be spared this interview, but Buckingham Palace ended that talk with an announcement:

"It is expected that the Queen will receive the late secretary of state for war upon his resignation Tuesday morning."

plection of a project he instituted to convert the palace from a museum into a vicarage.

While the church performed its last solemn ceremony for burying a Pope, 50,000 pilgrims gathered in the square outside were asked to offer silent homage to "the Pope of charity, of goodness and of peace." They responded with sincerity.

Only moments before, grief swept over Msgr. Loris Capovilla, the Pope's 46-year-old private secretary, as he gazed for the last time on the face of the man he had served for a decade, Msgr. Capovilla kissed the Pope's folded hands and wept.

Nearly the dead Pope's sister, Assunta Roncalli, 78, watched sadly. The Pope's three brothers were not present. They had gone back to their alpine village, Sotto il Monte, and were busy tending the fields they had worked since childhood.

Cordle said he was staggered by the news.

He said the Queen was "wrongly advised," a criticism of the government more than the Queen herself.

It could be that the Queen has some words of her own to say to Profumo.

Immediately after telling the Commons last month that his friendship with Christine was innocent—a statement that he now admits was a lie—Profumo went to a race track as the guest of Queen Mother Elizabeth and was photographed with her in all the next day's papers.

Earlier Thursday, Miss Keeler's roommate said that often when Profumo went out the apartment door a Soviet naval attaché walked in.

Lord Lambton, a Conservative member of the House of Commons, said he had twice warned authorities of Profumo's association with Miss Keeler. Writing in the Evening Standard, Lambton said Profumo's sensational resignation as war secretary will not end the story.

"It is merely the beginning of another unfortunate chapter which may end heaven knows where," he added.

Labor party leader Harold Wilson served notice that his party will press "for the full facts."

Profumo resigned in a letter confessing that he lied to the House of Commons to cover his illicit association with Miss Keeler. He previously had insisted that he knew her but nothing improper had taken place.

The church's reverent farewell to John XXIII began four years, seven months and nine days after he was joyously proclaimed pope.

However, his last will and testament, disclosed by the Vatican press office Thursday, expressed hope that his remains eventually would be transferred to the Lateran Palace adjoining the Cathedral of St. John Lateran, his See as Bishop of Rome. He suggested the transfer be made after completion of a project he instituted to convert the palace from a museum into a vicarage.

Rails Future Held Bright

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The railroad industry is on the threshold of a brighter economic future, a railroad official predicted.

"No industry possesses greater opportunities and potentialities than do the railroads for capitalizing on the developments that lie ahead," said Alfred E. Perlman, board chairman of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad and president of the New York Central System.

He listed three objectives as necessary to the survival of railroads as private institutions. They are: consolidation, relaxation of rate regulation and modernization of engine work rules.

"The outlook for the accomplishment of these objectives is quite favorable," Perlman said in a meeting of the Newcomen Society.

Theatre Tax Exempt Measure

HARRISBURG — The House Municipal Corporations Committee Wednesday approved a bill exempting motion picture theaters from local amusement taxes. It went to the full House for further consideration.

Other bills approved in committee would prohibit the sale or display of chickens, ducklings or other fowl except by "hatcheries or stores" engaged in the business of selling them for commercial purposes and broaden the powers of soil conservation districts to include water conservation.

E-L Curtail Plans Scored

PORT JERVIS, N. Y. (AP)—An alderman told an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing that the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad move to curtail service here was taken despite a saving the city provided the line in taxes.

Theodore Kuykendall, an alderman-at-large, said the railroad was paying $6,000 less per year in taxes than it did three years ago.

"In spite of that tax saving, the line still wants to curtail railroad service and eliminate jobs," Kuykendall said at the ICC hearing into curtailment and discontinuance of service involving five trunks.

Afterwards he said the railroad contended that most communities would not be hurt seriously by the loss of two trains—No. 25 and No. 26—serving Port Jervis. They held that tax service in the area was quite adequate.

Air Program Seen Libelous

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A 1962 radio program, which a Philadelphia broadcaster claimed was substantially true and produced without malice, was labeled false and libelous by Pennsylvania's Supreme Court Wednesday. It awarded $40,000 damages for the slander.

Actually, a Philadelphia jury had fixed damages at $60,000. Chief Justice John C. Bell Jr. and Justice Benjamin Jones would have reduced the amount to $10,000.

Austin Purcell, an auto mechanic, filed the action against Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., then owner of station KYW.

Justice Michael A. Musmanno, in his opinion, said the broadcast attacked Purcell's honesty, impugn his integrity and severely maligned his standing as a law-abiding citizen.

School Director Ruled Not Guilty

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—A Criminal Court jury of 10 women and two men handed up a verdict of not guilty Wednesday afternoon in the case of a Nanticoke, Pa., school board director who had been charged with solicitation of an $800 bribe for a teaching position.

The defendant, John Ship, 56, of Nanticoke, steadfastly denied the accusation.

Ship went on trial Monday with Judge Bernard C. Brominski presiding.

Ship was accused of alleged solicitation of a bribe of $800 from Charles D. Wysocki, Nanticoke, for a job as a Spanish teacher with the school district. Wysocki did not get the job and is currently a teacher at the state correctional institute at Dallas, Pa.

Commissioners Approve Urban Renewal Project

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County commissioners approved yesterday the East Stroudsburg Lincoln Ave. Urban Renewal Project at a meeting in the courthouse.

King Beers, executive director of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority, said, "Now that all the local bodies have approved the plan, it will be sent to the federal office in Philadelphia and then to Washington, D. C."

"The federal government will approve or disapprove the project on or before July 7, as on this date, July 7, if approval is given in Washington, a contract will be signed between the federal government and the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority," he concluded.

The project is the outgrowth of the appointment of a planning commission in East Stroudsburg in 1953. This commission had the job of studying the present land use and making recommendations to the East Stroudsburg Borough Council.

East Stroudsburg Borough Council approved the plan at its Tuesday meeting. Harold Wiggins, council president, gave the following account of the need for the project.

"The assessed value of portions of East Stroudsburg has been decreasing. This is the history of many older communities in this part of the country."

"In order to encourage industry and new business to locate in East Stroudsburg and to build new and better properties employing more workers, it was necessary to provide space for them within the borough limits.

"Under all available plans, this was impossible until the flood of 1953 and the construction of the Flood Control Project. The money spent by the state and the borough on this project qualified for credits towards the borough's share of an urban renewal project."

"Without these credits, an urban renewal project would have been impossible. To take advantage of these credits, totaling approximately $434,161, the borough had to act at the present time or lose the credits."

"A number of commitments have already been received by the local urban renewal authority for three tracts of land. There are nine parcels in the Lincoln Area."

"East Stroudsburg's share of taxes on these three is estimated at $17,000 or more than 6.7 times the present total borough real estate tax collected from the same area. The present tax income from this area is $2,518.98."

Philadelphians and then to Washington, D. C.

"The federal government will approve or disapprove the project on or before July 7, as on this date, July 7, if approval is given in Washington, a contract will be signed between the federal government and the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority," he concluded.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The owners of an Elk County bowling alley which was destroyed by fire have received $175,000 from AMF Pinsotters, Inc., in an out-of-court settlement.

The settlement was announced yesterday by John Feeney, counsel for the Allelo brothers of Ridgway, who asserted a fire which leveled their four-lane bowling alley April 2, 1962, was triggered by a faulty automatic pin-setter manufactured by AMF.

Negro Is Named To Justice Post

HARRISBURG (AP)—The state Justice Department yesterday named Negro lawyer Arthur C. Thomas of Philadelphia as a deputy attorney general to bolster its civil rights activities.

Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandrini said the appointment of Thomas to the $7,500 a year post helps fulfill a campaign promise by Gov. Scranton last fall to increase civil rights activities in the state.

Palmer Not Seeking Walter's Vacancy

EASTON — Judge Clinton Budd Palmer, a Democrat, yesterday announced that he is not a candidate to succeed the late U. S. Representative E. Walter.

"I am not going to become a candidate for Congress," Palmer said, "although, of course, I have been honored by the suggestions that I run for that office."

Palmer's announcement appeared to leave State Sen. Fred B. Rooney of Bethlehem; State Rep. Jeannette F. Reibman of Easton and State Rep. Van D. Yetter, Jr., of Marshalls Creek, as the most likely choices for the Democratic nomination.

Others being mentioned are Rev. Dr. George A. Creitz, Easton clergyman and Earl E. Schaffer, former mayor of Bethlehem.

Creitz To Try

Creitz said after Judge Palmer's withdrawal that he will try for the nomination through the Democratic organizations and that he has no intention of running on an independent basis.

The final decision on a candidate will be made by the Democratic State Executive Committee after receiving recommendation of a group representing the four counties in the 15th District.

The four county chairmen will meet with Otis B. Morse, state Democratic chairman, next Monday to spell out ground rules under which the choice will be made.

While Crowe seems to have drawn a large number of supporters, Woodrow A. (Woody) Horn, Northampton County Republican leader, has been contacting Monroe County GOP office holders to drum up some support of his own.

Horn opposed Rep. Walter in the last two elections, and was handed a defeat at the polls each time.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Bendix Corp. of Detroit said yesterday it will buy the assets of the Motorola Aviation Products Business at Culver City, Calif. Details were not disclosed.

Principal products of the Motorola Aviation Products Business are an automatic direction finder, automatic flight control system, a communications-navigation system and a compass data system designed for use in light aircraft.

Motorola said it was giving up the business because it would have had to increase its product line greatly to boost aviation sales.

E-Burg School Board Cuts Millage

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Borough school board Wednesday night reduced its real estate tax from 50 to 48 mills and left the occupation tax at 100 mills.

At the previous meeting the real estate tax had been increased from 48 to 50 mills and the occupation tax had been increased from 35 to 100 mills.

James Bunnell, board secretary, said yesterday that since the enactment of the 5 per cent sales tax by the Scranton administration, a reimbursement of $22,000 will be received from the state.

This would have meant a decrease in one of the taxes of three mills, but the occupation returns had decreased.

Only Got $735,000

"From an expected return of $800,000," Bunnell said, "we only received about $735,000."

Thus the school board shaved two mills from the real estate tax, bringing it to the level of last year, and used the rest of the money received from the state to make up some of the occupation deficit.

In other business, Claude Cramer, Carl Hamill and Edward Hughes were elected to serve on the Joint School Authority. Cliff Cramer was already on the authority, and was not up for election.

A Step Forward

The county commissioners action yesterday asking the county park commission for a definite proposal on lease and use of the Flagler Run area is a welcome step toward possible development of a county park.

The park commission has held one meeting since it was appointed Jan. 15, 1962. Its second meeting has been called June 13.

Herbert Altemose, chairman of the park commission, says his board could make no definite plans for use of the 150-acre area until the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority, which owns the land, decides whether it will lease it or allow it to be used.

The authority, on the other hand, argues that it is the park commission's duty to initiate action, to come up with a clear plan and proposal, to lead the way.

The authority is right.

It owns the land and is responsible to its bond holders to see that the bonds are paid off. It cannot give the land away, but it has so far bent a friendly ear to the proposal for park use of land it no longer needs for water supply.

The park commission is rightly concerned with the basic question of whether or not the land is available and there may be good legal or financial reasons why the land cannot be leased or used.

But it is the park commission's duty to answer the authority's questions on future plans, to press for answers and to keep the ball rolling.

The authority asked last October for a definite plan. It asked again this week. Now the county commissioners have seconded the request and have pledged to help the park commission in its work.

If it wants to make a deal, the park commission will have to play ball with the borough authority, and come up with the requested plans and proposals.

The main text of the article about the Monroe County native is derived from the recently published book, "A. Mitchell Palmer: Politician." It was written by Stanley Cohen.)

No man in the history of Monroe County ever got so close to the presidency as A. Mitchell Palmer, the man who stormed out of the Pocono Mountains to become one of the most controversial figures in United States history.

Palmer who knew the politicians because he was a keen student of the game himself just missed getting the most coveted prize in government.

So close yet so far the best describes Mitchell's bid for his party's candidacy for the nomination as President of the United States.

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington—The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee is investigating a sensational report that Undersecretary of State Averell Harriman and Cuban Dictator Castro conferred secretly in Russia.

Both were there in late April, although this extraordinary allegation is the first hint of a meeting between them.

According to detailed information from important Cuban refugee sources, the reputed parley between Harriman and Castro took place around April 29, in either Moscow or Murmansk.

Harriman was in Moscow April 25-28, to talk to Premier Khrushchev on the deteriorating situation in Red-threatened Laos. On the basis of a Soviet announcement, Castro was in Moscow on the 28th. From a news photograph released by the Russians, Castro was in Murmansk on April 27. Harriman stopped off in that city on the 28th, on his way out of the Soviet.

Inquiries by these writers at his State Department office, brought a blank reply. Assistants stated Harriman was in Australia, and claimed they knew nothing about a meeting between him and Castro. They didn't deny it, but asserted it was news to them.

The Cuban informants told the Preparedness Subcommittee, headed by Senator John Stennis, D-Miss., that Harriman and Castro discussed re-establishing diplomatic relations in exchange for a further reduction of Soviet troops in Cuba.

Also that Castro brought up the question of resuming trade between the U.S. and Cuba— which he makes no secret of ardently seeking.

Such a move by the U.S. would automatically destroy the extensive trade barriers built up against Castro's Communist regime by members of the Organization of American States. The whole diplomatic and trade battle against Castroism would collapse.

Red Combat Forces—The reported meeting between Harriman and Castro is taken with utmost seriousness by the Senate committee. The report is being very carefully looked into.

State Department and other administration officials are slated to be closely questioned. Meanwhile, the committee is making a thorough study of certain confidential details conveyed to it.

Reason for the committee's concern is the impressive source of its admittedly sensational information. One of the informants is a refugee who gave up an important government job in Havana. Other information obtained from these sources has proven valid.

From these refugee sources, the senators also have learned that Soviet troops have been secretly moved from their encampments to areas that cannot be easily spotted by high-level U-2 reconnaissance flights.

These significant changes have taken place very recently. They are particularly important as the Soviet Embassy has been assuring the State Department that Moscow is slowly withdrawing combat elements from Cuba.

Intelligence reports do not bear this out. On the basis of intelligence data, Russia actually is rotating its forces and not withdrawing them. For every airplane that ostensibly leaves the island, another ship surreptitiously disembarks as many or more troops.

Intelligence estimates Russian troop strength in Cuba at 17,500. President Kennedy has stated the number is 12,500. Cuban refugees claim at least 22,500.

A major reason for this lack of accurate data is that there have been no low-level reconnaissance flights over Cuba since early February. They were suspended on direct orders of President Kennedy.

High-level U-2 reconnaissance flights are limited and infrequent. This has never been publicly disclosed either by the White House or the Pentagon.

On April 30, 1961, several months after taking office, President Kennedy stated, "Communism is not negotiable in the Hemisphere."

Another Backstage Deal?—The Senate Investigating Committee, headed by Senator John McClellan, D-Ark., is digging into the sale of two jet airliners by General Dynamics to Indonesia to determine whether there is any connection between this transaction and a $17 million U.S. loan.

What has aroused the suspicions of these Senate probes is that the sale of the huge airliners for $15 million and the negotiating of the $17 million occurred within a week of a cash offer. Foreign aid officials flatly deny any relationship, but the McClellan committee, which is investigating the multi-billion dollar TFX plane contract, isn't satisfied with these official disclaimers.

Representative Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the Banking Committee, is sending a special agent to Switzerland to uncover possible new information on the mysterious disappearance of $7.5 million in negotiable government bonds from the Federal Reserve Bank in San Francisco. Patman launched a three-member subcommittee investigation of this baffling loss, and proposes to see what can be learned in Switzerland.

The subcommittee reported it doubted the bonds had been "accidentally burned" as claimed by bank officials. Two of the probes left no doubt they are convinced the bonds were stolen. Patman agrees with it.

of the $1 million bonds were deposited in a "numbered" bank account in Switzerland around the time of the Cuban missile crisis last fall.

The Pennsylvania Story

Complainants' Field Day

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Reporter's Notebook:

Howls From The Other Side—Pennsylvania's legislative Democrats—in the minority in both House and Senate this session—have had somewhat of a field day "complaining" during the week.

First of all they have been bleating because, as they phrase it, they just don't know what the plans are of the Republican Scranton Administration from one legislative session to the next. "We're being kept in the dark until the very last minute" is a favorite chant among anti-administration Democratic braves as they try to peer ahead to see what might be on the legislative agenda strategy-wise.

What these complaining Demos seemingly conveniently ignore is the fact that when they were running the front office the very same treatment was handed the then anti-administration Republican bloc.

Additionally, Democrats are still in a legislative-political pout over the manner in which Republican lawmakers hammered through the administration's sales tax program—even now continuing to protest that they still think the added funds and the one per cent sales tax increase are "not necessary," this notwithstanding the fact that the legislation has not only been passed and signed by the Governor, but is already in effect.

Another roadblock that hampered Palmer was his refusal to make a positive stand about the repeal of prohibition.

A Mitchell campaign on the theme "An American whose Americanism cannot be misunderstood." He tried to preach this along with a campaign slogan of "undiluted Americanism."

The former Monroe-Pike-Northampton-Carbon representative to Washington had a following. At the 1920 National Convention Palmer's name was placed in nomination. But here the wheels of fortune turned.

Powerful inside-fighting by Sam Compens, the labor leader, and other workmen organizations made it self known. Also Mitchell's failure to compromise on the League of Nations and prohibition cost him heavy support. Inbetween taunts by the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor twisted the minds of the delegates. Some of these remarks were "Pontius Palmer" and "government by injunction," referring to the Palmer Raids.

The AFL took more than a passing interest in Palmer's candidacy, opening a national political body to reward labor's friends. Palmer definitely was not one of these slated to be so honored.

On July 2, 1920 the first roll call at the convention gave Palmer 266 votes, only 10 less than McAdoo and 100 more than Ohio's governor, Cox. By the seventh roll call the man considered one of the Democrats' greatest orators rose to 267½. He rose no further, dropping to 211 votes on the 13th roll call on July 13.

Slowly his delegates deserted the sinking candidacy. But not enough to give McAdoo or Cox a victory. By the 36th roll call a recess was called. Here the end of Palmer's political career came. Amidst "back-room" ploys to quit, Palmer was told he was through. His friends deserted him and his delegates defected.

Midway through the 36th roll call A. Mitchell's delegates were released, ending a political career that rose and fell in 12 years.

Palmer only made token campaign speeches for Cox, the Democrats standard bearer. A Mitchell practically retired during the entire presidential election year to the calmness of the Pocono Mountains and Stroudsburg.

foolproof excuses used by married men when the girl friend puts the pressure on them:

(1) I don't have any feeling for my wife, but I love my children. When they are grown and gone we'll get married.

(2) You are too good for me. I am going to get out of your life so you can find the kind of a man you deserve.

(3) My wife is sick, and I can't leave her in that condition.

DEAR ABBY: Re: the man who drinks beer out of a baby bottle and nipple.

You may be absolutely right in suggesting he see a psychiatrist, but there is another explanation:

Several years ago I gave a birthday party for my husband and made it a rather elaborate "kid" party. Our guests entered by climbing a ladder and "sliding" into the living room. There we met them with an orange blossom cocktail served in a baby bottle and nipple.

The party went into orbit so fast we were astonished. We had to confiscate all the nipples because our guests were getting so high on one or two drinks we couldn't get supper going. Later the bartender told me that sucking through a straw—or nipple—hastens and heightens the effect. This is one of those odd bits of information a psychiatrist could go through life without learning.

The Great Leap

A decade and more ago a tacit combination in restraint of trade existed among the writers and reviewers of books about China. Somehow, a clique of professed believers in the notion that the Red Chinese dictator Mao Tse-tung was simply an Oriental Thomas Jefferson had managed to convince American book publishers that they, and they alone, had an inside track to the truth about the "thunder out of China."

In vain a few dissident students of Chinese affairs—Freda Urey and Irene Corbally Kuhn were among them—tried to present the counter-argument that Mao was just about as un-Jeffersonian as Stalin himself.

These few off-beat siekies were almost universally side-tracked as the book-reviewing Owen Lattimore praised the book-writing Owen Lattimores in all the important cultural media.

To do the American book publishers and the review editors justice, they were not the original perpetrators of the Mao Tse-tung "agrarian reform" delusion.

Just particular bit of goods had already been sold to our State Department in Washington, and had had the high endorsement of no less a personage than General George Marshall. The book publishers and the review editors, whose expertise in the esoteric subject of "diplomacy" was on a par with my own understanding of vector analysis, were merely echoing the "line" from official places.

Since it is now judged to be "McCarthyism" to speculate on the motives of the original "agrarian reform" clique inside the State Department, we'll let those old embers rest.

Anyway, this column's preferred method is to accentuate the positive whenever there is anything positive to accentuate. Fortunately, American book publishers are now willing to issue books that are critical of the Red Chinese revolution.

Though the horse, in China, has been stolen, and the barn door presumably locked, we are now exhibiting a little respect for history, which is good for our own minds even if it does not help the Chinese in China.

All of this is by way of preamble to a salute which we wish to make to a young Chinese-American, Valentin Chu, who has just published a remarkable book called "Ta Ta, Tan Tan: The Inside Story of Communist China" (Norton).

Mr. Chu is bilingual, and before he came to this country to write about China for such publications as Life Magazine, the New Leader, and U.S. News and World Report, he worked in Shanghai and in Hong Kong. His method is to curycornb copies of the Chinese Communist press which are bootlegged to him.

Then, working with official "leads," he uses his emigre and refugee sources to round out the picture as best he can.

The big news in Mr. Chu's book is that the Great Leap of the Red Chinese has ended in the Great Flop. Mao is pictured as the "mad statistician of Peking." Unlike the Chinese sages of the past who believed that the "shortest distance between two points is to follow the line of least resistance," Mao is brutally direct in his approach to science.

As part of the Great Leap Forward, Mao decided that the Red Chinese must rid themselves of the "four pests"—flies, mosquitoes, rats, and sparrows. Raising a "human sea" of fly swatters, mosquito slappers, rat cutters and sparrow shooters, the Maoists went religiously to work.

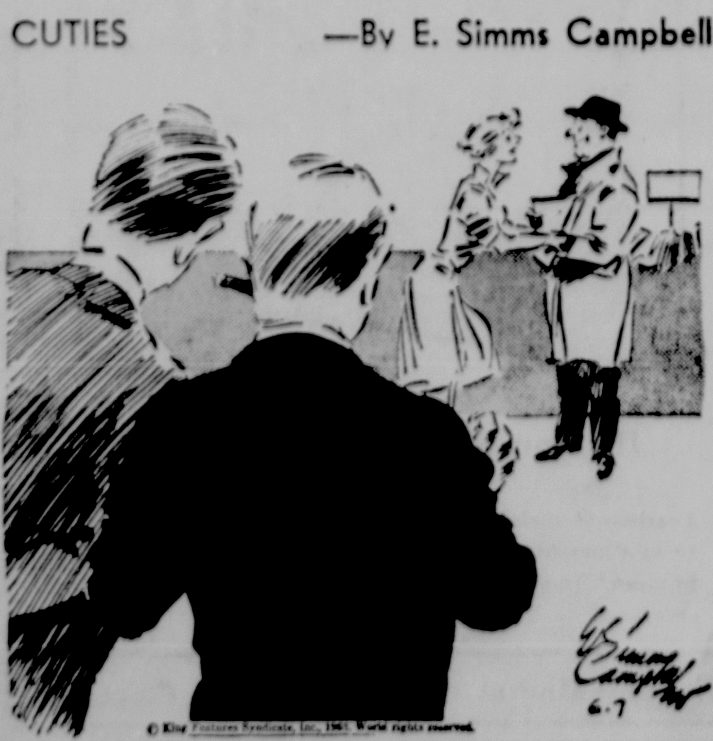

Everything was going fine until, with most of the sparrows dead, the insect population of China took a suddenly frightening jump. Now the sparrow, as an insect eater, has ceased to be a "pest"; the Maoists are trying to bring it back by giving it the status of a sacred bird.

Thus the pendulum swings between the Great Leap Forward and the Great Leap Backward. Whether Mr. Chu is talking about insect eradication or the "metaphysical" backyard steel furnace, or the "bamboo H-bomb," he brings the gift of perspective to his work. For instance, he tells us that the Red Chinese have uranium in Sinkiang. But it has to be refined in Soviet Central Asia before it can be used in a primitive Russian-built reactor in China.

Query: If Khrushchev and Mao remain on the outs, can the Red Chinese get enough Russian help to make a deliverable atom bomb within foreseeable time?

Such is the type of question that Mr. Chu raises. He comes too late to be an antidote to Owen Lattimore. But he could be good medicine in combatting our newer gullibilities about the Far East.

Laurel Blossom Princesses Get Royal Welcome As Festival Opens

STROUDSBURG — The red carpet was out—literally—last night for the Laurel Blossom Princesses who will reign over the 1963 Laurel Blossom Festival. The red carpet led them into the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Stroudsburg, where civic leaders brought their official welcome at a dinner meeting.

Laurel corsages were presented to each of the princesses and decorated the dinner table. William Altier, president of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau which sponsors the festival, served as toastmaster. He also outlined the purpose of the festival to publicize the Poconos and the hospitality of the 250 resorts which are members of the Vacation Bureau.

Sally Ferrebee, director, set the informal houseparty atmosphere of the festival honoring the girls chosen to represent 21 Eastern colleges. In a hilarious recital, she told of past misadventures including the laurel princess who lost her car keys down a sewer, and present crises including her trip to New York City yesterday to collect $6,200 worth of dresses for the fashion show at the Laurel Ball in a truck escorted with farm animals and driven by Old Mac Donald, heard of all.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton gave the invocation before the dinner. Holt Wyckoff presented each of the princesses a scrapbook engraved with her name to record the highlights of their week of being feted throughout the Pocono area.

Shanley Goes On Trial July 8

STROUDSBURG — Gerald E. Shanley, Jr., of 519 Palmer Ave., Stroudsburg, will go on trial in Federal Court in Scranton on July 8 on 12 counts involving National Guard payroll checks.

Shanley, now an assistant vice president of the First Stroudsburg National Bank, is a former captain in the National Guard and was commander of Co. A, 1st Battle Group, 109th Infantry, with headquarters in East Stroudsburg.

Shanley and two non-commissioned officers of the company were indicted by a federal grand jury on Jan. 16.

Vincent Marek, Jr., of Tannersville, a former first sergeant, pleaded no contest to a 19-count indictment charging forgery, false statements and using the mails to defraud. He is awaiting sentencing.

Robert E. Schoonover, of East Stroudsburg, a former master sergeant in the company, was found guilty on three of six counts at a jury trial in March.

Honored Guests
Among the honored guests was Mrs. Raymond Price of Snyder, Pa., who was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Pennsylvania and runner up to Mrs. America, and Mr. Price.

Mrs. Gerald O'Neill and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Schuchard were hosts at the opening dinner. Mayor Thomas Kistler of East Stroudsburg represented the official welcome. The community was represented by Rev. and Mrs. Harold C. Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ottaway Jr. and Bobby Westbrook of the Daily Record, Mr. and Mrs. Holt Wyckoff of Wyckoff's.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ahnert and Mr. and Mrs. Reese Dengler, chairmen of the Laurel Blossom Festival were present with other members of the Vacation Bureau; Mr. and Mrs. John Calhoun, Larry Levy, official photographer, and Mrs. Levy; Mrs. Charles Rhoades of Split Rock; Mrs. Perkins of Buck Hill Inn.

Found Guilty
He was found guilty on an indictment charging unlawful uttering of a payroll check and two counts of using the mails to defraud the government. He was found innocent on two counts of forgery and one count of uttering a check with intent to defraud. He has been continued free on $1,000 bail pending argument on his motion for a new trial.

Shanley was indicted on 12 counts, charging that he forged endorsements on three U. S. Treasury checks issued to members of the company and passed the checks at Stroudsburg on Aug. 12, 1960 and that on or about the same date he submitted a false and fraudulent National Guard field training payroll to the finance and accounting office of the Army at Indianhead Gap.

Five other counts of the indictment against Shanley charge that, as part of a scheme to defraud the government, he submitted new mailing address for drill payments for several members of Co. A, knowing the addresses were incorrect.

Shanley will be tried before a jury and Chief Federal Judge Michael H. Sheridan. He will be represented by Edwin M. Kosik, Scranton attorney, while Asst. U. S. Atty. Carlton M. O'Malley, Jr., will present the government's case.

The trial is expected to last about a week.

Council Set To Act On Playground

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Council will meet at 10 a.m. Wednesday at a Third St. lot to determine whether or not it should be accepted as a borough playground.

The property has been offered to the borough by the First Stroudsburg National Bank, which owns it. The inspection will be to determine cost of clearing the lot and installing equipment.

The project has been recommended to council by Mayor Joseph H. Small and Stephen Sackley, second ward councilman.

Samuel O. Wells, III, the borough's playground supervisor, has notified Small that he can spare the services of one supervisor on a parttime basis to organize activities at the Third St. lot.

County Commissioners Request Flagler Run Park Use, Lease Plan

STROUDSBURG — The county commissioners yesterday instructed the county park commission to draw up a plan for use and lease of the Flagler Run area as a county park.

The action settles a disagreement between the park commission chairman and the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority, which owns the 150-acre tract, over who should act on the 1961 park proposal by the Pocono Forestry Assn.

Herbert Altomose, chairman of the park commission, said Wednesday the commission had held only one meeting since it was appointed Jan. 13, 1962, and had made no definite plans for park development because he believed use of the land should first be approved by the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority.

Wants Definite Plans
On the other side of the impasse, the Municipal Authority said it wants definite plans and lease proposals before it asks its consulting engineers and bond trustees for permission to lease the land.

'Princess' Suffers Minor Cuts
STROUDSBURG — A candidate for queen of the Pocono Mountains Laurel Blossom Festival was slightly injured about 3:15 p.m. yesterday when a bottle or stone dropped from the Seventh St. bridge, shattered the windshield of the car in which she was riding on Interstate Rt. 80.

Nancy Wadsworth, 20, of 41 E. Coleman Ave., Chatham, N.J., suffered minor cuts on the right hand and above the right elbow, according to Stroudsburg police, who investigated.

Police said that the missile—apparently dropped by a group of boys—struck the windshield of the car driven by Mrs. Winifred Wadsworth, 47, Nancy's mother. They were en route to Pocono Manor Inn, where Nancy is a guest during the festival.

Police urged anyone having knowledge of who the boys involved in the incident might be to contact police headquarters.

Miss Wadsworth is a student at Elmira, N. Y. College, majoring in education. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Z. Wadsworth.

The commissioners' action clears the way for progress on the Aug. 21, 1961, plan for park development submitted by Eugene F. McNamara, secretary of the Pocono Forestry Assn.

The commissioners said they are ready to help the park commission in its work on drawing up a park plan.

Their action yesterday was taken after Commissioner Chairman John R. Lessone read a letter from George T. Robinson, solicitor for the Borough of Stroudsburg and the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority.

Robinson's letter was written under instructions from the authority which decided at its May 27 meeting to ask the park commission for definite plans.

The letter stated, "Before any decision can be made in this matter, a proposal will have to be submitted which is sufficiently specific to enable the board of the authority and the consulting engineers to pass upon it."

"This would involve, by way of illustrations, the amount of land the commission proposes to lease, a designation of the use or uses to which it will be put, the term of the lease, the rental to be paid, the nature of the improvements, if any, to be erected, the disposition of such improvements upon the expiration of the lease, the provisions to be made for sanitation and safety, insurance coverage."

"Upon receipt of a definite proposal, the board of the authority will give same its consideration and will submit same to the consulting engineers and probably also to its bond counsel for their consideration and comments."

Letter To Mervine
Robinson sent a similar letter Wednesday to Russell L. Mervine, Stroudsburg attorney who is a member of the park commission. The park commission is expected to present its proposals to the county commissioners for approval before they are forwarded to the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority. The park commission has called a meeting June 13.

THIS IS the time of year when homeowners across the land go to a lot of trouble, and no little expense, to build patios and terraces for warm weather relaxing.

No one would suggest this is a bad investment; backyard star gazing on a quiet summer's night is an expedition into relief which never will grow old. But think how much more practical would be a terrace which serves more than this one function, however enjoyable—a terrace which gives you your money's worth even during the bleak winter months.

Today's House of the Week, J-78 in the series, has such a terrace. It's a delightful 234-square-foot flagstone area between protruding wings of the house. Half the terrace is covered, forming a porch which adds both to its privacy and its usefulness.

Besides being a perfect summertime relaxing spot the terrace contributes measurably to the looks of the house, provides a sheltered entry, affords a pleasant view from the living room, and plays a part in the extremely well ordered floor plan of this house, a plan characterized by excellent traffic circulation, clear zoning and efficient use of space.

The house was designed by architect Lester Cohen, a true craftsman when it comes to working within the space disciplines imposed by middle-income budgets.

The house contains 1,590 square feet of living area in overall dimensions of 42 feet wide by 29 feet four inches deep. It contains three bedrooms, two baths, living room, dining room and family room, an attached double garage, full basement, and a laundry-mud room adjoining the kitchen.

The exterior has an up-to-date colonial flavor emphasized by the arched columns of the front porch and the natural stone veneer on the front of the bedroom and garage wings. It's a facade of durable popularity and good taste.

Additional Details

Good circulation means the ability to move freely throughout a house and from one room to another without intruding on anyone's privacy or having to use a room as a passageway. The smaller the house and the less space given over to hallways the more difficult it is to provide this, but look how ingeniously architect Cohen has done it in this house.

The side entrance from the front porch not only provides the home with a foyer but enables one hall-way to serve both as a center hall and a bedroom hall—but never at the same time. The hallway also serves as a buffer zone between the sleeping wing and the noisy living area.

Actually the foyer and the full master bath occupy space "stolen" from the terrace, space that otherwise wouldn't be available.

The living room is a spacious 20 feet by 13 feet five inches formal area overlooking the terrace through diamond paneled windows. An arch leads to the dining room allowing the two rooms to be used together for entertaining when needed.

The housekeeping area is a wonderfully efficient and practical layout featuring a side service area which also provides entry from the garage—an arrangement homeowners will appreciate when they drive up with a load of groceries. The cellar stairs also open at this venthole.

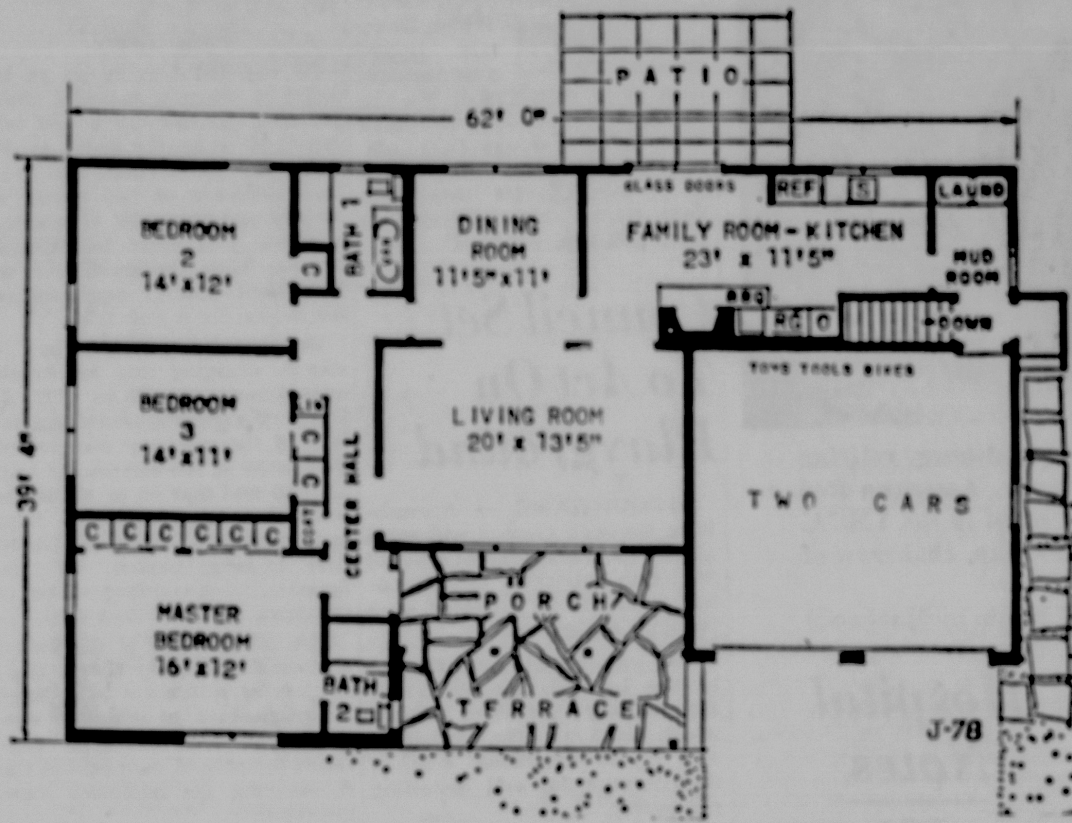

COURTYARD EFFECT: A 234-square-foot terrace, half of it covered forming a porch, adds both to the looks and livability of this attractive three-bedroom ranch. The exterior has an up-to-date colonial flavor, a design of durable popularity and good taste.

Double windows over the sink and sliding glass doors from the family room provide excellent supervision of the backyard and rear patio. But one of the nicest features of the kitchen is the barbecue adjoining the range and oven, part of the family room's fireplace ensemble.

The main bathroom is ideally located, convenient to both family bedrooms as well as the living room and housekeeping area. Incidentally, any family preferring to put the laundry in the basement perhaps could use that space as a main level lavatory. But give the present arrangement a try first; most folks who have a mud room with the washing machine handy wonder how they ever got along without it.

J-78 Statistics
A three-bedroom ranch with two baths, living room, dining room, family room, attached garage, full basement, laundry, mud room. House contains 1,590 square feet of living area, not counting 234-square-foot terrace, in overall dimensions of 42 feet wide by 29 feet four inches deep.

FLOOR PLAN: Note how the one hallway serves both as a center hall and a bedroom hall—truly efficient use of space—and also provides a buffer zone between sleeping and living areas. The house contains 1,590 square feet of living area.

Residents, Visitors Urged To Shun Birds, Animals

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania Game Commission issued a reminder yesterday to Monroe County residents and visitors that it is illegal for any person to pick up or take into captivity any wild bird or animal.

In urging vacationers, tourists and outdoor enthusiasts to leave young wildlife alone, commission spokesmen pointed out that what often is intended to be an act of kindness usually turns into an act of cruelty.

M. J. Golden, executive director of the State Game Commission said, "In most cases, fawn deer, baby rabbits, fledgling songbirds and other young wildlife which appear to be deserted are still under the watchful eye of their mothers. Wildlife parents normally leave their young unattended during much of the day."

"They feed or rest nearby and return to look after their offspring only occasionally. Their normal fear of humans will usually prevent them from showing themselves when some person approaches their helpless young, leading some people to believe they have deserted them."

Golden added that it is difficult, time-consuming and usually too much of a burden for the average person or child to raise wild birds and animals in captivity.

He strongly urged all persons who find nests of fledgling birds or the young of wild animals to avoid touching them and to leave the vicinity immediately.

Pennsylvania law provides for a penalty of $100 in cases of illegal possession of fawn deer, $200 for black bears, $25 for game birds and $10 for songbirds or small game animals.

Family Quarrel Over $30,000

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh police started out to investigate a reported bank robbery on the city's South Side yesterday and ended up with a $30,000 domestic quarrel on their hands.

The incident began Tuesday night, Sgt. Paul Ryan said, when Mrs. Elizabeth Kosanovich, 35, part-owner of a South Side tavern, and her husband, Milton, got into an argument.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Kosanovich went to the Mellon National Bank & Trust Co. office on the South Side. Minutes later her husband arrived, and both demanded keys to their joint safe deposit box.

The squabble continued, and the couple agreed to split the money, a bank spokesman said. Milton, 37, left the bank with his half. His wife soon followed.

Once outside, the spokesman said, Kosanovich knocked his wife down and fled with her share of the money.

Meanwhile, a bank employee had called police, trying to put an end to the couple's argument inside the bank. Somehow, the information got tangled, and police thought they had a full-scale robbery on their hands.

Mrs. Kosanovich, who suffered scratches of the wrist, preferred assault and battery charges against her husband. Police arrested him several hours later. But the money was still missing, police said.

Collision Sinks Japanese Vessel

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—The Japanese fishing vessel Kaig Maru sank yesterday eight hours after a collision with the Italian tanker Fina Italia about 200 miles northwest of here, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

The Coast Guard said 15 seamen from the Kaig Maru were picked up by the Italian vessel, and a search was under way for an estimated 10 missing.

The Fina Italia was virtually unmarked by the collision, which occurred while there was at least 10 miles' visibility, the Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard plane from San Juan flew to the scene with life rafts and rescue equipment, but the rescue operation was reported difficult due to heavy swells in the sea.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

You can't marry 21 pretty girls any more than 10, but the young bachelors of the Poconos can dream, anyway. A fat lot of good it will do them with the Cornell Concert Band and the Lafayette Glee Club serenading them and personal beaux turning up from Yale and Princeton.

But they sure are young, pretty, and charming to talk to, as everybody discovered at the opening Laurel Blossom Dinner last night. Sally Ferber, who assumes the role of sorority housemother for the festival is perfect for the part.

Not a hair of her new hair-do was out of place, despite her hair-raising adventures yesterday in the Lincoln Tunnel in transporting David Gother's dresses up from New York. George Calvo had sent his Old MacDonald bus for the chore with Old MacDonald himself to drive it. The truck was painted all over with farm animals. Sally wore her hat with the straw-berries. Old MacDonald wore a full beard, and the tunnel police will never be the same.

One of the fabulous dresses to be worn tonight at the Laurel Ball is one ordered by Mrs. Kennedy — and while we're name-dropping, let's not forget that the committee almost landed Barry Goldwater to crown the queen. He was staying at Buck Hill but had to leave before the coronation, but there was considerable excitement around the Poconos yesterday.

And the excitement will continue all week for the Laurel Princesses and their hosts. The Laurel while sort of tight-fisted right now about to open up in this heat, and we sure hung them up a moon for their trip to their host resorts last night.

Tonight, baby sitters are at a premium and hair dressers have been doing a lead office business getting their customers ready for the Laurel Ball. You all look beautiful.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

I am by nature a weeper, the way some people are bleeders. I do not cry often, and many times when I have prayed tears would start so that my heart wouldn't hurt so. I couldn't produce even one . . . but when anything hits "home" quickly and sharply, I blubber. No amount of "talking to myself" changes this. I'm not even calmed by the sorry fact that when my mascara runs I'm a tragic sight to behold. That's why I grabbed an extra packet of Kleenex and plunked my nickel down on the Wyckoff cosmetic counter enroute to Moving Up Day ceremonies this past Wednesday at Stroud Union High. It was 31 years ago that Stroudsburg High (as it was then known, and as it still is in this stubborn heart of mine) moved me out. This June it was my son's turn, and with just a few minor changes the ceremonies were much the same this year as they were then.

When the Class of '63 entered the auditorium led by color guards, my vision suddenly blurred. I was seeing not just the faces of this year's graduates, but the faces of those other teen-agers who marched along with me so long ago. As I focused upon the pretty countenance of one of this year's graduates, noticing her massive teased hairdo and her sophisticated makeup, I thought, "Strange, isn't it?" But every class has one — a glamour girl whose favorite reading material is found in Vogue and Seventeen, just as every class has another girl who is very sweet, natural, and winsome; the typical "girl next door" whom one assumes will just naturally be content to stay quietly at home, working in the store down the street, or in the neighborhood Tea Room, until her turn comes to mend the socks of some very special guy and wheel a perambulator. There are, in every class, the graduates who already resemble mature, intelligent, men and women; the others who are still carefree, blithe-spirited children, masquerading for a few hours behind the cloak of maturity; the proud and arrogant, the humble and doubting, the settled and unsettled. And all of them, whether they admit it or not (and they won't admit it, of course), are scared to death.

All through Rev. Stoness' discourse at my baccalaureate service, I was suffering a cold chill of self-doubt. Here I was, seventeen, expected by my parents to be capable now of supporting myself. But was I? Had I been sufficiently prepared? Was I psychologically attuned to the idea? How horrible it would be to fall short! Looking into the faces of this year's graduates, I am positive these misgivings didn't end with me any more than they had been of my creating.

Finally the program ended. The seniors were led into the corridor from whence their voices echoed briefly before the juniors — now in their place — took over the ceremony. This too is life, I thought. We hold our little niches for a single moment . . . we move away . . . and before the last farewell has faded, there is someone new in our shoes, looking as promising, as enthusiastic, as capable, as gifted as we ever did in our finest hour. This is as it should be . . . and it is tragic. With the human ego being as it is, it is often well high unbearable. It is why, as humans, we rebel against change even though we crave it; dread our usurpers even while we sincerely recognize the need for them and wish them well; and buckle down to the business of doing the best we can in the short time that is our own.

To all seniors everywhere, and to those who are about to be seniors, we at Wyckoff's say, "God bless you and keep you. God make His face to shine upon you." If you believe His will, and if He does, you have no cause to fear . . . you have reached for the stars, and on your fingers will be some stardust forevermore.

Mantle Lost To Yankees
'A Minimum Of 5 Weeks'

NEW YORK (AP)—A second examination of Mickey Mantle's left foot Thursday showed that the New York Yankee's $100,000 outfielder will be out of the line-up "a minimum of five weeks."

Dr. Sydney Gaynor, club physician, made the examination after the player was brought here from Baltimore, where his left foot was hurt Wednesday night when the spikes of his shoe caught in a wire fence while he was chasing a home run by Brooks Robinson.

"Mantle has an undisplaced slightly oblique fracture of the third metatarsal with fragments in excellent alignment," Dr. Gaynor announced after an hour-long examination.

"Fortunately, he suffered no other injury. The cast placed on the foot is a very good one and needs no adjustment. However, it will take a minimum of three weeks for the bone to heal."

"When the cast is removed then, Mantle still will have to walk gingerly for two weeks after that so I really see no prospect of his returning to the line-up until after the All-Star game."

The All-Star game is scheduled to be played in Cleveland Tuesday, July 9.

"I'm sure the doctor knows more about it than I do," Mickey said as he hobbled off the plane with the aid of crutches. "But I have an idea it's not as bad as it sounds."

Mantle was scheduled to board a plane Thursday night for his home in Dallas, where he will remain for three weeks resting the injured foot.

Despite the loss of the American League's most valuable player and generally acknowledged as the "guts" of the New York team, Manager Ralph Houk refused to despair and confidently declared the Yankees "will win the pennant without Mantle."

It was the second serious injury suffered by Mantle in a little over 12 months. On May 18, 1962, at Yankee Stadium, Mickey tore a muscle in his right thigh and injured his left knee in a game against the Minnesota Twins.

He missed 30 games and the Yankees played no better than .500 ball during his absence. He returned to the line-up June 16 and hit a three-run homer in the role of a pinch hitter.

Throughout his career, Mantle has been hobbled by injuries to his legs. He tore the cartilage in his right knee in the 1953 World Series and has had to wear a brace or heavy wrapping since then.

Cubs Tie Giants
For First Place

CHICAGO (AP)—Relief pitcher Lindy McDaniel slammed a 10th inning home run off Billy Pierce Thursday as the Chicago Cubs beat San Francisco 3-2 and tied the Giants for first place in the National League.

The Cubs tied the score at 2-2 on a two-run home run by Billy Williams in the eighth.

McDaniel had bailed the Cubs out of trouble in the top of the 10th by picking Willie Mays off second base with the bases loaded and one out, then fanning Ed Bailey to retire the side.

The Cubs thus swept the four-game series with the reeling Giants and now have won 11 of their last 13 games.

It was the eighth setback in 11 starts for the Giants.

STROUDSBURG — Wyckoff-Sears gained an 8-3 decision over the Elks yesterday in a Stroudsburg Little League game behind the five-hit pitching of John McAllister and extra-base power supplied by Mark Williams, Danny Courtwright and Don Crane.

Williams swatted a pair of doubles in his two official trips to the plate while batting in three runs and scoring one. Crane and Courtwright each had a two-bagger.

Wayne Jagers, who hurled the distance for the Elks, recorded nine strikeouts in a losing effort while yielding eight hits.

The Sears nine held a 7-0 lead before the Elks broke into the scoring column with a marker in the bottom of the fourth.

Utility Promotes Portland Manager; Names Successor

PORTLAND — James S. Bartman has been named superintendent of production of Metropolitan Edison Company and John L. C. Bachofer, Jr., R. D. 2, has been appointed to succeed Bartman as superintendent of the utility's Portland Generating Station.

According to the announcement made by Ralph E. Neidig, Metropolitan Edison vice president, Bartman in his new assignment will be in charge of operation and maintenance of the company's five generating stations.

Bartman, of Portland, joined MECO in 1948 as a technical engineer at Crawford Generating Station, Middletown, Pa. In 1956, he was named superintendent of Portland Generating Station, which position he held until his recent appointment.

A native of Royersford, Pa., Bartman was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1943 and served as a commissioned Naval officer from 1943 to 1948.

Bartman and his wife, the former Virginia Lee Andrews, have two sons, David L. and John G. Bartman.

Bachofer of Bangor joined Metropolitan Edison in 1962 as a cadet mechanical engineer, later becoming junior mechanical engineer. He served as technical engineer at Portland Station from 1966 until his recent appointment.

Born in West Reading, Bachofer was graduated from Reading High School in 1948 and received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from Lehigh University in 1952.

His professional and community activities include: associate member, American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Registered Professional Engineer, Pennsylvania; Edison Electric Institute; Power Plant Performance Project Team of Task Force on Computer Application to Utility Engineering; Lutheran Laymen's Movement; Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Bangor; vice president of the Church Council and chairman of Committee of Church Property.

Bachofer and his wife, the former Mary Lucena of Reading, have one son, John L. C. Bachofer, III.

Patronage Post Speculation

WASHINGTON (AP) — House insiders speculated yesterday that Rep. Harry R. Sheppard, D-Calif., will become chairman of the House Democratic Patronage Committee, which hands out political favors to party faithful.

This was one of several vacancies left by the death Friday of Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa. Walter also was chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, to which all Democratic House members belong.

Top Democratic strategists professed not to know who might be the leading candidate for the caucus post.

Walter's best known position was as chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. This is a standing committee of the House and by the rule of seniority the next ranking Democrat, Edwin E. Willis of Louisiana, will move up to take his place.
